

One summer day, as Little Worm heads out to play, he discovers he has a song stuck in his head. He and his friends set out to learn who filled his head with “Shimmy shimmy, no-sashay.”

Use Ear Worm! in your classroom to get students moving, making music, and having fun!

- ♪ Talk about the term ear worm and what it means. You can even look up its origins online. Ask students if they've ever had a song or tune stuck in their head.
- ♪ Get students up and moving by having them act out the animals' various dances as you read aloud.
- ♪ Ask students either individually or in groups to come up with a catchy ear worm and make up a movement to accompany it. Put them all together and have fun!
